I realized that I shouldn't establish laws through reasoning and proof based on the Talmud: after all, that's what the authors of Tosafot, Rambam, Rashba, and Ran did—and each of these sages defended their position. How could I allow myself to interfere in the debates of the greats by presenting my own arguments?! So I decided to rely on the three pillars of law on which the entire House of Israel is founded: the Rif, the Rambam, and the Rosh.
